Kurzbeschreibung2003 EPIC Award Finalist for Best Sci-Fi/Paranormal RomanceHe helps his E.T. to call home...but can he let her go?Following a horrendous breakup with his two (and three) timing fiancée, Oregon naturalist Dr. Kent Xavier has sworn off women, all women. He heads out into the Deschutes wilderness to brood, alone, but his solitary trip turns into a midnight rescue mission for a damsel in distress. Lured by the beauty of planet Earth, Povre disobeys strict orders to remain in camp in favor of a moonlight walk. A bad step on a slope of loose rocks lands her in the very predicament she's supposed to avoid: contact with the dominant native lifeforms. Forced together by mutual need, Kent and Povre soon find themselves on the run from alien-hunting government agents. Along the way these two scientists from very different worlds discover the most important element of all - love.NOTE: The author has dropped all pen names in favor of using her actual name. The story content remains unchanged.Kurzbeschreibung2003 EPIC Award Finalist for Best Sci-Fi/Paranormal RomanceHe helps his E.T. to call home...but can he let her go?Following a horrendous breakup with his two (and three) timing fiancée, Oregon naturalist Dr. Kent Xavier has sworn off women, all women.
