Stayed Up Too Late Reading ItVon Dorothy May MercerTessa (Tess) is an artist who opens an art store on Nelson Mandela Square, one of the most fashionable places in Sandton City, Johannesburg, South Africa. The story is about her emotional struggles and confusion over men, stemming from the fact she has never gotten over the pain of her father deserting her mother when Tess was a child. Thus, she guards her heart and is unable to completely trust the men who love her. Author Kathy Bosman does a wonderful job of taking us through Tess's emotional agony and her stages of maturity until she make the right choice. As a bonus we are treated to a guided tour of some of the best and a few of the worst places in South Africa. Along the way, we learn quite a bit about art, too, as well as a surprising sky-diving parachute jump. Recommended for those who enjoy a sweet romance with a bit of travel to exotic places and scenes. I received this book as a gift, but would have been willing to pay for it. I had a hard time putting it down and stayed up too late reading it. Good work, Kathy Bosman.

KurzbeschreibungSeven years earlier, a young and serious Tessa Calitz wrote a letter to free spirit Ryan le Roux promising her undying love. As time passed she forgot about that letter...but Ryan did not. When he walks back into her life, Tessa is in a relationship and busy setting up her art gallery in Johannesburg. She has plans to start a family, and the arrival of Ryan throws her for a spin. He is the worst thing that could happen to her dream of stability...or is he? When everything she clung to starts to crumble, Ryan is right beside her to inspire her to greater things. But her compulsion for having marriage and children on her terms alone pushes Ryan away--until she falls in love with an orphaned baby. What can Ryan do to make Tessa realize that being with him is what her heart has longed for all along?
