Entertaining fantasy Von Ein Kunde As the First Daughter, Nerienne is a powerful individual. However, even she cannot defy the dictate that the Tiria of Gayome has declared that she marries the ruler of Teles. On the journey, Elasiens attack Nerienne's caravan. Though she uses her powers, it takes the assistance of an escaped prisoner, dreamsinger Durgan Ketassian to save her life. Durgan loathes the dictatorial rule of the Tiria, who has condemned him and his peers to death for their dreamsinging talent. He knows that Nerienne is his natural enemy as the daughter of his foe. However, he cannot stop his attraction to her. Nerienne wonders who he truly is as she finds herself in love for the first time. Together, they can save a world and find internal peace and happiness. Separately, they will find a quick death at the end of the short and lonely trail. DREAMSINGER is an entertaining fantasy romance that will provide much pleasure to sub-genre fans. The story line is typical for the genre but raised above the clutter by the numerous intriguing characters that seem genuine in spite of many of them containing magical powers or being an author-created species such as Nerienne's companion, Bidge. J.A. Ferguson shows she is a talent that will be welcomed by fantasy and romance readers for her enthralling other world journey. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Dreamsinger builds a world where dreams come true! Von Holly FNerienne is the First Daughter, heir to a matriarchal line of rulers. Her life is following a set course until it's tossed topsy turvy and Nerienne finds herself allied with one of her mother's enemies in a battle to save Gayome. Durgan is a man denying his legacy as he fights for his people's freedom from the tyranny of Gayome's ruler. The last thing he ever expected was to be allied with the next ruler . . . and even worse, to be falling in love with her when he has every reason to hate her for all the hardship her mother produced during her reign. In Dreamsinger, JA Ferguson has built a believable world, believable conflicts, but more than that, she's created two characters who are fighting against the odds to save their world, their people and to create a love that would touch the hearts of any world.
