Beautiful finish! Von Anna Salamatin I was absolutely floored by this second installment in the Fierce series. This is the Epic continuation of Hunter and Autumn's story. I was put through the whole gambit of emotions with this one, everything from laughter to downright anger and everything in between. After tearing himself up trying to please everyone, Hunter finally realizes he just can't do what Autumn and his brother want, it's just not in him. He has a learning disability (compliments of his drug addict mother) that prevents him from retaining what he learns in class which in turn makes collage impossible. He was born to fight and fight he will. Unfortunately, Autumn finds out he is fighting again before he has a chance to explain all the reasons to her, and shows up at the ring. They argue, it gets heated, Hunter reacts badly like he's prone to do when cornered and Autumn takes off in the rain on foot and Hunter goes through ten levels of mental hell until he finds her walking on the side of the road. You are going to have to read this part to believe it but I'm telling you it is one of the most Epic scenes I've ever watched unfold! The reconnecting, and discovery of each others heart felt love is just beautiful. Autumn's father is still a problem. He has no doubt that this thing between his little girl and Hunter is no good and it is breaking Autumn's heart. The one saving grace for her is unfailing support of her mother who just wants her to be happy. Hunter proves himself to be such an awesome fighter that he gets the chance to go pro. He in return pays for the medical help that Autumn's mother needs and is healthy enough to be ring side with Autumn when Hunter purposes marriage..... Oh yeah, I forgot to mention that Autumn is pregnant (from that epic scene at the road side) and her water chooses that moment to break as if her babies (yes, twins!) are putting in their two cents worth. I guess by now I don't have to tell you to settle in with this one. You can see your not going to be able to put this one down! And don't worry about Grand Dad, he come around..... Babies change everything!
