disappointed! Von Customer To me it seems Mrs Dodd is not in her prime with this kind of story. The characters are undefined and fickle, i didn't like or understand any of them or their reasons. I won't read the other books in this series and stick to her older works. Hopefully her next books will be better! 0 von 1 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. eine frische rache Von Ein Kunde zuerst dachte ich.. oh jeh, wieder so eine leidige revenge geschichte. oft ziehen sich die verletzten gefühle ja in bchern mit diesem thema bis zum einschlafen hin. aber ich mu sagen, das buch hatte trotz allem irgend etwas frisches. daher auch 4 punkte

Kurzbeschreibung To the owner of the Distinguished Academy of Governesses Dear Madame Owner, I am looking for an experienced companion for my sweet, elderly, slightly dotty aunt, and that companion must be: 1. Tall, blonde and twenty-seven years of age. 2. Desirous of living in an ancient castle in an isolated area of Lancashire. 3. Not nervous about any sinister rumors about me. 4. You. Sincerely, the newly titled Marquess of Raeburn From the owner of the Distinguished Academy of Governesses My dear, mysterious Lord Raeburn, Coincidentally, I fulfill all your requisites. However, as condition to accepting this position, I insist on the following: 1. That no interest be shown in my past. 2. That I have the free time to explore Lancashire for reasons that I will not divulge. 3. That you not bother to deny your culpability in the disappearance of your wife. 4. That we will not indulge in familiarity that will surely lead to another disastrous, passionate interlude between us. Sincerely, Hannah Setterington Read an Excerpt: Mrs. Trenchard curtsied and announced, "Miss Hannah Setterington, my lord." For one moment he stood stiffly, a lonely figure waiting for ... something. Then in a low, deep voice he commanded, "Leave us." Hannah's breath caught. That voice. That tone. Her heart gave a thud. Then another. Then another, marking each second, each excitement, each fear. From the back he looked like ... and the reflection in the glass seemed to be familiar. But she knew how wrong she could be. When he dwelt in her thoughts, all men looked like him. And yet ... and yet ... Vaguely, she heard the door shut. Slowly, he turned to face her. And the foreboding which had haunted her for nine years became reality. She had heard rumors this man had killed his wife. She knew he had not. Because she was his wife. deSetting: Regency England Sensuality: 8 Having sold her successful business, the Distinguished Academy of Governesses, Miss Hannah Setterington arrives in Lancashire to accept a position as caretaker to the earl of Raeburn's elderly aunt. Hannah is shocked to learn that the newly titled earl is none other than Dougald Pippard, the man she loved and ran away from nine years before. Dougald isn't the slightest bit surprised to see Hannah, for her arrival at Raeburn Castle is the result of a carefully planned scheme to bring her back into his life. Furthermore, he has the power to compel her to remain in Lancashire, for he can give Hannah something she yearns for--a meeting with her deceased father's parents. While Hannah and Dougald are engaged in a battle of wits and wills, something wicked is afoot at the Castle. The prior two earls were killed in accidents shortly after coming into the title, and when Dougald is shot at and then attacked by thugs, it's clear that he's next on someone's hit list. Whether Hannah and Dougald will arrive at a mutually agreeable truce is debatable, but before the two can live happily ever after they must first discover the identity of the mysterious villain. This latest in Christina Dodd's Governess series has delightfully Gothic touches with the heroine arriving at a forbidding castle on a stormy night, a dark, brooding hero, and danger threatening the two. In typical Dodd fashion, however, the Gothic elements are offset by the warmth and humor in the wonderfully interesting cast of secondary characters and plenty of romantic tension between Hannah and her earl.--Lois Faye Dyer Pressestimmen "Christina Dodd keeps getting better and better!"-- Debbie Macomber "Christina Dodd is everything I'm looking for in an author."-- Teresa Medeiros "Treat yourself to a fabulous book -- anything by Christina Dodd."-- Jill Barnett "Dodd proves she is a top talent in the world of romance writing, creating exciting, entertaining stories for her readers to enjoy."-- The Oakland Press
